—— [Facsimile of a numeral series of fifty-two cards of the ordinary character, in a cloth case.]
[? Amsterdam, ? 1655; reproduced, Edinburgh, 1885.]
98×62 mm. Backs plain.
 Printed from the original pack in the possession of Earl Nelson, for the Clarendon Historical Society. The originals were probably engraved on copper, in Holland, during the residence of Charles II. in that country. The suits are marked, and the number of the suit on the upper corners of the card, and the description of the subject occupying the body of the card is engraved at the bottom. They are illustrative of the Rump Parliament and the private actions and conduct of several of the individuals most conspicuous during the commonwealth. The ace of spades represents "Bradshaw, the Jaylor, and ye Hangman; keepers of the Liberty of England"; the ace of diamonds "The High Court of Justice or Olivers slaughter house"; the ace of hearts "Cromwell, Ireton, and Hudson, all in ye same Boate"; and the ace of clubs "A Free state or a tolleration for all sort of Villany".

—— [A Pack of fifty-two numeral card-pieces of the ordinary suits, in a cloth case.] [London, ? 1750.]
87×65 mm. Backs plain.
 "This series is made subservient to arithmetical instruction. In the upper right-hand corner of each piece is a reduced representation of a particular card of the usual design. On the remaining portion of the piece an arithmetical question is proposed and the sum worked out in detail. The whole is enclosed in a frame-like border. The ace of diamonds, which commences the series, has on it the 'numeration table,' and a 'duty stamp (?)' in red. Below is the inscription, 'This table shows how to express properly the true value of any number whatsoever whether it be written or named'. The ace of hearts illustrates the 'Subtraction of Cloth Measure,' the ace of spades the 'Reduction of Money,' and the ace of clubs the 'Reduction of Cloth Measure'. The knave of clubs, the last card of the series, works out 'Question 5' in 'Practice'. The whole sequence is thus made to include the arithmetic of addition, subtraction, multiplication, division, reduction, the rule of three, and practice. These cards are, as respects both designs and text, impressions from neatly engraved copper-plates." Catalogue of Playing Cards, Brit. Mus., E 176, p. 235.

CARDS. [A Pack of forty-eight Spanish numerals of the suits oros, bastos, copas and espadas. In a cloth case.]
[? Genoa, ? 1800.]
87×55 mm. Backs decorated.
 In this pack the four tens are suppressed, and the dames, or queens, displaced by caballos. The large coin on the ace of oros has on it the arms of Spain, and above on a scroll "Por. Anto. Ma. Balbi," and beneath on a similar scroll is the rest of the inscription "Estranqvero En Ghenova". The two of oros bears the inscription "Naipes Finos" between the two coins, and in the centre of the four of the same suit is a star with the initials A.M. B. arranged two and one. The marks of the suits espadas and bastos are discrete or separate, and the inner border lines on the pieces in three of the suits are divided into separate portions of different number. There are no numbers at opposite corners diagonally as are usually found in Spanish numeral pip-cards.

—— [A Piquet set of cards of English manufacture, in a cloth case.] [London, ? 1810.]
87×58 mm. Backs plain.
 The pack consists of thirty-two numerals of the suits hearts, clubs, spades, and diamonds. In accordance with the game of piquet, the two, three, four, five, and six of each suit are suppressed. On the coate-cards, or "honours," are whole length figures of the unconventional kind. The ace of spades bears the duty stamp G³R in red, the letters being interlaced and the figure placed above to the right of the monogram, the whole within an oval surmounted by a crown. The figures on the honours are of small size measuring only 60×32 mm. within a single black line.

—— [A Series of fifty-two cards of the suits piques, trefles, cœurs, and carreaux, in an olive mor. case.]
[? Lyon, ? 1680.]
90×55 mm., mounted on separate cards to size 6×4 in.
 "This set is intended to afford instruction in heraldry, and is one of the original French versions of the sequence which originated with Oronce Finé dit de Brianville, an Abbé of Poitiers, and was first published by Benoist Coral, a bookseller at Lyons. On the king of clubs are the arms of Pope Innocent XI. (Odeschalci), 1676-1689. . . . The technical execution of the copper-plate engraving is but mediocre. The engraved descriptions and titles are in French." Catalogue of Playing Cards, Brit. Mus., F. 79, p. 135.

—— [A Series of fourteen cards, from a pack of (presumably) forty-eight Spanish numerals, of the suits oros, bastos, copas, and espadas. In a cloth case.]
[? Madrid, ? 1800.]
88×58 mm. Backs decorated.
 Of the suit oros, the ace, four, six, and caballo are present; of bastos, the four, eight, and sota (the last named in duplicate), of copas, the three, nine, and sota; and of espadas, the six, seven, and rey. On the ace of oros is a shield with the Spanish arms and the inscription on an encircling ribbon "Rex Carolus Dei Gratia Hispania". The whole is surmounted by an eagle, and at the foot of the card are the initials M. F. The same initials are found on the sota of copas to the left of the figure. In the centre of the four of oros is a star with a shield in the middle bearing gules a cross argent. The marks of the suits espadas and bastos are discrete or separate, but the inner border lines are not divided and there are no numbers at opposite corners diagonally on the pip-cards.

Illuminated initials. This copy, Syston Park 452, with book-plate. It is of the greatest interest as having belonged to Angelo Politiano the friend of Lascaris and Lorenzo de' Medici, and contains many emendations from MSS. in his handwriting. It is the same copy which is described by Fossi in his Catalogue of the Magliabecchi Library pp. 496-7, and was afterwards in the collection of M. Poirot, whose book-plate is on the 1st leaf. It has been completed since it was bound by two leaves from another copy.

 First edition. The 37th leaf is placed by various authorities immediately before the poems of Propertius and I believe that to have been the intention of the editor. But it is clear from an examination of the leaves that it could not have been printed there. It has been printed, possibly in error, upon the blank counterpart of sig. f 8.

Herbert 592, Dibdin III. 514, 586, Lowndes 425.

 This edition is believed to have been printed by John Reynes although it is evident that it is quite a different setting up from the edition bearing Reynes' name, dated 1542. In the latter the cuts at the beginning of the Knight's and Squire's Tales are the same, in this edition they are different. In Reynes' edition the Plowman's Tale follows the Parson's, in this it precedes. There are 372 leaves in Reynes' edition, here there are only 360. Both Herbert and Lowndes have assumed that there was only one edition with the different booksellers' names on their copies. The fact is there were two; for there is in the British Museum an edition dated 1542 with Bonham's name in the colophon which is evidently one of John Reynes' 1542 impression. The edition described above is supposed to have been printed about 1545.

Leaves 462, 463 blank.

Stamped calf, with the woodcuts coloured.

Hain * 4996, Panzer I. 524, Proctor 2610.

 Hain mentions 11 leaves with woodcuts which display genealogies, at the beginning, making the total number of leaves 474. The woodcuts, especially the maps, are remarkable. Some of the small cuts are repeated many times. This copy has evidently been issued with two blank leaves in sig. k, as the lacunæ are supplied in MS. in a contemporary hand. The missing leaves have been added from another but inferior copy.

The first book printed at Lübeck, but of which the author's name is unknown.

 The first edition of the "Chronicle or Customs of London" was printed abroad, probably by Doesbrowe in Antwerp about 1502. The date of this edition must be shortly after 1521 as the events are brought down to the 12th year of Henry VIII. The celebrated ballad of "The Nut-Brown Maid" first appeared in this curious compilation.

 First edition of the complete works. The dedication found on the verso of the first leaf of the first volume, dated 15 Oct. 1499 was added after the publication of the first two volumes, and at the same time as the last two. The circumstances which caused it to be printed were these: Louis XII. obliged Luigi Maria Sforza, Duke of Milan to leave his native country, and established as Governor of that city Trivulzio to whom Minutianus addressed his dedication. Luigi Sforza drove the French out of Milan in 1499 and again took possession of his capital. When this happened the printer is believed to have used every means in his power to suppress the dedication to Trivulzio and was so successful that in many copies the leaf is wanting.

 Probably the first edition of these works. Printed in the smallest Roman type used by Ulrich Han. Both Panzer and Audiffredi give the same subscription as is found in the "Tusculanae Quaestiones," a mistake which has evidently arisen through both books being bound together. Dibdin describes the various parts and seems to consider the "De Officiis" as a separate work.
